REPORT

OF

HEALTH OFFICER

February 1, 1916.

To the Honorable Board of Selectmen,

Enfield, N. H.,

I am pleased to hand you herewith my report as Health Officer of Enfield, N. H.

I wish at this time to tender my thanks to the entire Board of Selectmen for any and all assistance which they may have rendered me during the past year, and they are extended to the citizens of Enfield for the very great assistance they have rendered by their willingness to conform to the health laws of the State.

We have had the past year the following cases of contagious diseases, which have in no wise been connected or spread one to the other: Two cases of diphtheria, three cases of typhoid fever.

The water system and the milk supplies have been examined by the State Chemist from time to time and there have been no traces of disease discovered in any of the samples transmitted. The very capable manner in which the physicians attending the above cases have handled the same has materially aided in the prevention of the spreading of these diseases. Herewith an itemized account of expenditures:

TRUSTEE'S REPORT

The Board of Trustees of the Public Library of the Town of Enfield present the following report for the year ending February 15, 1916.

The reports of the Librarian and Treasurer indicates the prosperity and successful working of the library.

The library is the people's university, giving the citizens of the town the opportunity of reading the best that has been written in literature, science and travel. This year marks the 300th anniversary of the death of Shakespeare. Among the new books added during the past year are Shakespeare's plays in the Rolfe edition which give more clearly than any other edition an explanation of the works of the great dramatist.

Last year The International Encyclopaedia was received as a gift by the library. Nearly all of the volumes have been received and are accessible to all persons who may ask for them when the library is open to visitors.

We have endeavored as in the past to co-operate with the public schools in encouraging the boys and girls to choose wisely in their reading. To that end we have tried to keep in touch with all the studies as pursued in the schools and so furnish to the younger readers the books of reference that have been needed by them. A collection of books owned by the school district is still kept in the library.

A large number of Enfield people already avail themselves of the privilege afforded by the library. We feel sure that many others would do the same if they would but visit the library and see for themselves what the library can furnish them. We try to reach all the people of Enfield. Once a week books are carried free of charge to the patrons at Enfield Center, the post office serving as an exchange station.

In accordance with the agreement with which the books from Rev. C. M. Addison were received two years ago a branch library of one hundred books has been continued at the East Hill school-house. The district schools in other parts of the town have also had library advantages.

An examination of the Treasurer's report on page 19 shows that 82 volumes were re-bound at the Dartmouth bindery last year. There are other books now in the library that are in need of like treatment. We feel also the need in our library of more standard books of poetry, travel, biography, history and science. We ask our voters for the means to supply these needs.

In closing our report, we wish to say that the public library exists for the purpose of not only providing books but also of helping people to use them. We will be glad to answer questions from anybody who wants to know what book to read or to borrow for their use any book that our library does not contain.

We desire to thank all who have contributed to make our work a success.

Respectfully submitted,
 ELLA M. PATTEE,
 ALBERT S. KILBOURN.
 ELMER E. JONES,

REPORT

OF THE

Superintendent of Schools

The past year has shown a continued gain in the efficiency of our schools.

We have been fortunate in retaining so many of our experienced and successful teachers and in securing so efficient new ones. We feel a just pride in saying that our teachers are earnest, faithful and progressive, and that the progress made during this and preceding years has come as the result of their loyal and enthusiastic co-operation.

The regularity of attendance of the pupils shows an advance over the record of last year, now being the highest ever attained in the system. This continued gain, covering a series of years, is most encouraging and commendable. The punctuality of our pupils, while not poor, could be improved. The instances of tardiness would be represented by about four (4) pupils tardy every session for the school year. Out of an enrollment of two hundred (200) pupils it will be seen that this is not a particularly poor showing. However, every effort should be put forth by both teachers and parents to encourage the inculcating of the important habits of regularity and punctuality of attendance. With our rural school-houses made more attractive, servicable and sanitary, a better record could be made. Let every school-house be provided with a bell, which need not cost over fifteen ($15) dollars. This equipment would help to increase the efficiency of the school and would certainly be appreciated by each community.

The High School has made a splendid growth. The school attained this year an enrollment of fifty-three (53) pupils. Next fall with an entering class of fully twenty (20) pupils, the school will be seriously hampered in its work by the lack of adequate accommodations. By a new adjustment of the program of studies, alternating from year to year seven (7) of the subjects, the school now offers a program the equal of schools employing at least four (4) teachers. This arrangement meets with the hearty approval of the State Department of Public Instruction and the officials of Dartmouth College, who have recently inspected the school, and have granted it the privilege of admitting pupils to Dartmouth on the principal's certificate and recommendation.

The practical training being given our pupils in the commercial department, by having actual business experience in local offices and stores, cannot fail to materially strengthen the course.

Chemistry should be added next year to the curricula of the High School as a subject alternating each year with physics. The State superintendent of schools approves of the alternation of these subjects. No other subject has a greater educational or practical value.

The past century has been described as an age of physics and engineering, the present one is certainly to be an age of chemistry. Its important and practical application may be seen in the industrial world, in food and soil analysis and in promoting better sanitary conditions.

In conclusion I wish to thank the members of the school board for their loyal support, the teachers for their cheerful and faithful co-operation, and the citizens for many encouraging expressions of appreciation of the work of our schools.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS A. ROBERTS,

Superintendent.

REPORT

HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

To the Superintendent of Schools :

Herewith is submitted my second annual report of the High school.

The school year of 1914-1915 was successfully completed on June 18. The graduating class numbered ten, the largest graduating class in the history of the school. From this class one is a most able student in a business college, another has achieved a high mark as a stenographer, two are teaching in district schools, and the others are at work in profitable business.

During the present year fifty-three students have been enrolled in the High School. Three have since moved to Windsor, Vt., one has returned to the Center for further preparation, and another found it necessary to work at home because of his father's illness. This, I believe, is the largest High school enrollment we have ever had. It seems that we shall lose eight through graduation this year, and about twenty will enter the High school next September. In the whole building I find that 207 pupils have registered to date this year.

Our schools are among the better schools of the state. This is due first, to the mental and material liberality of the good people of Enfield ; secondly, to the earnest co-operation of the Board of Education, Superintendent, teachers, and janitor in directing their combined efforts towards the mental and moral elevation of all the children in the community.

I may say with great satisfaction that the scholars are doing their part as is shown by their untiring interest in their work, their good attendance, active attention and zealous application. Their work in athletics has indicated their team work, their morale, and their good fellowship. The disposition of obedience and the willingness to co-operate with their teachers in matters tending to make school life useful, pleasant and social, have been features not to be passed unnoticed, and their efforts and successes in other than routine work have been both commendable and profitable. Order and decorum of all schools in and outside of the building has improved Absence, a predominating difficulty in most all schools, can be obviated to a large degree if the parents will realize that the only acceptable excuse for absences is either the presence of some condition that would make attendance inimical to the pupil's health, or the existence in the pupil's home of a serious misfortune. Absence one day means that it takes all of the next day for the pupil to get adjusted again to his work. It is pleasing to note that absences and tardinesses are decreasing.

I sincerely hope that the voters will see fit to add chemistry to the High School curriculums this year. What I can say in behalf of its addition would be eclipsed by a few quotations from J. E. Mills, Ph. D.

formerly Assoc. Professor of chemistry, University of North Carolina, Consulting Chemist.

"The knowledge which fits a child best for life is that which enables him best to understand and to appreciate his surroundings. The training which fits a child best for life is that which trains him best to see truly, to think clearly and to apply his knowledge."

Name anything about you with which chemistry has nothing to do. It makes little difference as to the reply—paper, cloth, glass, wood, brick, the body itself, the food which we eat, and the ground upon which we walk—chemistry teaches of the constitution of these bodies, and of the way in which they are made. Just as brick and stone and wood and mortar can be used to make a city full of houses each different from the other, so a few simple bodies are so united and put together as to make all of the wonderful world with which we are in every day contact. Is it not interesting to know something of the things of which the wonderful world is made, and something of the way in which they are put together, and something of the changes which they undergo? For fire does not destroy wood or oil—it merely changes them. The food we eat becomes a part of our body. Similarly, trees and plants grow because they absorb the necessary food from the soil and the air. Is it right that students should be allowed to pass out of the High school and enter upon life's work in total ignorance of the structure and changes of the entire world around them?

Each man's present life, as he lives it under the conditions of our modern civilization, has been made possible only by the knowledge of chemistry which the world has come to possess. This knowledge has made possible the production of iron from its ores, and every step of civilization has been dependent upon that knowledge. But that industry is only one of a hundred dependent upon the knowledge of chemistry for their existence or their present perfection. The production of copper, lead, silver, tin and zinc from their ores, and the winning of gold, are dependent upon chemical processes. The chemist explains how best to produce brick, cement, mortar and concrete, for the purpose in view. He supervises the manufacture of glass, of paints and of dyestuffs. He is a necessary adjunct to the sugar refinery, and of the soap factory. Nor alone for the material of the printing press, but for the paper and the ink as well a debt is owing to the chemist. He aids the physician with his drugs and the farmer with his fertilizers. To his care is largely intrusted the carrying out of the pure food law and the inspection of drinking water. The above are only examples. Literally in a hundred ways the knowledge of the chemist touches the home life of nearly every man, woman and child in the United States. In High school only a foundation for further reading in chemistry can and should be laid, and some of the simpler, and locally more important, processes should be taught.

A knowledge of chemistry proves useful in the home or in daily life. It enables one to understand far better than is otherwise possible, the valuable information given in many useful bulletins, reports and magazine articles on such subjects as health, hygiene, sanitation, pure and impure foods, pure and impure paints, patent medicines, fertilizers, scientific farming, insecticides, disinfectants, wood preservatives, etc. A little knowledge of these matters often means the saving of dollars. It is useful to know how to remove a stain, or to remember that the antidote for carbolic acid is alcohol.

It necessitates, at almost every step, reasoning from things seen to things unseen, and from particular facts to general laws. It cultivates the scientific use of the imagination. It develops accuracy, self dependence and intellectual honesty. It compels the students to see for himself, to think for himself, and to do for himself. In 1910, 9,378 public and private high schools reported 817,655 scholars studying chemistry.

There are community reasons here why chemistry should be taught in our schools. We have a local industry, Baltic Mills, in which the knowledge of chemistry is invaluable. I find that several graduates of our schools have entered colleges and pursued courses including the study of higher chemistry. Our boys who have studied pharmacy needed chemistry probably more than any other preparatory subject. Our boys on the farm should know chemistry for reasons previously stated.

Never in the history of our country has there been such a demand for chemists as there has been in the past year. All large manufacturing concerns with any care at all for the quality of their supplies, crude, finished or raw, that they buy employ a chemist; railroads buying coal, oil, etc., and an endless number of industrial concerns must have chemists. Chemistry must be taught to-day. It is the basic science in war or in peace.

Prices on chemicals and apparatus are fluctuating, but I shall estimate that they will cost about $85.00. The carpentry and plumbing to be done for the tables will cost about $90.00. This will equip the school to teach 8 students a year. The cost of maintaining the course from year to year will be small. This year we should have an extra appropriation of $150.00.

In summarizing numerous improvements made during the past year I find that courses in Political Economy and Business English have been added. Misses Follansbee and Plimpton have offered excellent instruction in music and drawing in the grades; drinking fountains and a sprinkler in the urinal have made the basement more sanitary; the wire fence on the western and northern boundaries of the school yard; the fire drill will empty the building in less than a minute; students in shorthand and typewriting are getting actual business practice in the offices of our business men; scholarship of the High School is 85.9—last year 81.1; the students of the High school have added a set of Nelson Encyclopaedias to our school library through their own efforts; the pupils of the High and Grammar rooms have tinted and decorated the walls of their rooms; the graduates of Curriculum I of the High school will be admitted to Dartmouth College without examination.

As I view the situation at this writing these are the pressing needs to be afforded in the near future. 1. A course in practical chemistry. 2. More visits from parents and citizens.

Every voter should consider it his or her duty to consider the needs of the village and district schools at the next school meeting. Steady and wise progression will build up a school system in Enfield that will be the best in the State.

I want to say, in conclusion, that the confidence that the good people of Enfield have had in me as their schoolmaster, and the friendship that they have afforded me and my family in this community have been a source of inspiration and help which has spurred me on to direct all of my energy and enthusiasm in behalf of our schools and public welfare. The timely and valuable co-operation that I have had from the school board, the teachers, and from you, Mr. Superintendent, have been, I assure you, greatly appreciated.

Respectfully submitted,

RAYMOND I. HASKELL.
